

68-10-109. Rules and bylaws for control of sexually transmitted diseases.

(a) The department of health is empowered and directed to make such rules and bylaws for the control of sexually transmitted diseases, not in conflict with the provisions of this chapter, including the reporting thereof and isolating and quarantining of infected persons, as it may from time to time deem advisable.

(b) All such rules and bylaws so made shall be of force and binding upon the state, municipal and county health officers, and all other persons affected thereby, and shall have the force and effect of law.
